

Charleston Daily News.

VOLUME II.—No. 2251

CHARLESTON, S. C., MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1866.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Later from Europe.

New York, June 10.—The steamships Allemanne, Melia, Denmark and Edinburgh have arrived, with dates to May 30.

The Government was beaten in Parliament by ten votes on Mr. Bouvier's resolutions on the prevention of bribery and corruption at elections.

The Consolidated Bank of London has stopped payment.

The Powers all accept the invitation to the Peace Conference, which was to meet at Paris at an early day.

The belligerents are still preparing for the conflict. The Italian volunteers are mobilizing rapidly. The Austrian army is now 600,000 strong, with parks of artillery and siege guns ready. The Russians are concentrating at Gratchenshitz. Prussia and Italy have postponed hostilities until they know whether the Conference fails. The second Austrian conference has caused great discontent at Vienna.

The Austrian army commenced marching towards Ypres on the 24th ult.

Italy engaged not to attack during the sitting of the Conference, but rebuilding forts to resist the new and improved artillery.

The Paris Press says that compensation to Austria for the loss of Venetia may be found in the territory on the Adriatic coast, Russia to retain the Elbe. The Duchies and Northern Schleswig to be restored to Denmark, and the Rhine provinces to form a State, attached to the Germanic Confederation.

Turkey will not occupy the Danubian Principalities, as was threatened, in consequence of the French and Prussian declaration against such intervention.

Latest from Europe.

IMPORTANT RISE IN COTTON.

New York, June 10.—The steamship Hibernian has arrived at New York, and brings intelligence to the effect of June 10. No change had taken place in Continental affairs. The time for the meeting of the Conference had not yet been designated. La Presse says that Napoleon will preside.

Sales of Cotton for the week 86,000 bales, with a buoyant market, which had advanced 1d. to 1½d. on American descriptions, and ¼d. to 1d. for other kinds. Sales to speculators 12,600 bales; to exporters 9500. Quotations of fair Orleans 16½d.; Mobile 16½d.; Uplands 15½d.; Middling Orleans 14½d.; Mobile 13½d.; Uplands 13½d. Sales on day of selling 7000 bales; market firm and unchanged. Sales to speculators and exporters 3000 bales. Stock in port 475,000 bales, of which 400,000 are American. Breadstuffs steady. Provisions dull. The Bullion of the Bank of England has increased £21,000. Consols 87½. U. S. 5-20's 68½ to 69½.

Feinian News.

New York, June 9.—Special reports from St. Albans mention an engagement between Colonel SCAMMAN's Regiment and the British "Army near Pigeon Hill. The British cavalry were dispersed and fled in confusion. The Fenians captured one hundred horses and three flags. Four Fenians were wounded and one of the British killed and three wounded.

Colonel SCAMMAN, subsequently ordered his regiment to withdraw from Canadian soil, but General SPEAR still remains.

SECOND DISPATCH.

New York, June 9.—The interest of the Fenian situation now centres in the small command of General SPEAR, which is a half mile across the border. A portion of his cavalry made a dash into Frislingburg yesterday, routed a British force, and captured a British flag. General SPEAR immediately commenced intrenching. The morale of the Fenian army is very bad, desertion being the rule—whole companies are making tracks for the nearest home transportation office, and, in some instances, whole regiments desert as an organization. Drunkenness pervades to an alarming extent.

Gen. BARRY, at Buffalo, has received an order from the President of the United States, forbidding transportation over roads, or other modes of public travel, of persons and materials of war supposed to be designed to violate the neutrality laws; also forbidding transmission over the telegraph wires of messages in cipher, or otherwise, from Fenians, or matter relating to Fenian movements.

The Fenian Council of War at Buffalo has decided to order all troops back to their homes; being without arms and money, they think it a useless waste of life to enter Canada.

End of the Fenian Invasion.

New York, June 10.—A special dispatch from St. Albans announces the finale of the Fenian invasion. The right wing of their army had retreated to that place from Pigeon Hill, and the men are preparing to go home. The whole force is completely demoralized. The officers and men refuse to do duty. Desertion was taking place by wholesale, and after a council of war General SPEAR reluctantly ordered the force to abandon the soil of Canada. No arms or reinforcements reached them. SPEAR said he would rather be shot than leave in such a way.

The United States authorities are furnishing transportation home for the Fenians, who gladly accept the opportunity. General MEADE made a speech to the United States soldiers, and said that the settlement of this trouble would prove satisfactory to our own and other governments, as tending to show that the United States, notwithstanding the past, would do to others as they would be done by.

General SPEAR and staff have surrendered. A special dispatch from Ogdensburg states that an American schooner was hailed by a British armed vessel under threats to fire on her. The American Captain ran up his colors, and suggested that there might be danger in firing on an unarmed vessel with that flag. The vessel was allowed to proceed.

Later from South America.

New York, June 9.—The steamship New York has arrived from Aspinwall, and brings three hundred and fifty thousand dollars in gold.

A grand national banquet took place at Lima in honor of the discomfiture of the Spaniards. The new Peruvian iron-clads had not been heard from since leaving Brazil.

Cholera in New York.

New York, June 9.—Mrs. REID, who washed the clothing of E. A. FRAZER, whose death from cholera was reported, was seized with the same disease on Wednesday, and died that night. A German girl living in the same house was also attacked, but was saved by prompt treatment.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—HORACE GREELEY and others, from New York, are in town—their business being to see Judge UNDERWOOD, in order to urge upon him the justice and propriety of admitting JEFFERSON DAVIS to bail. Some Congressmen say confidently that DAVIS will be admitted to bail, while others are equally firm in the opposite opinion.

Assembling of the Canadian Parliament.
TORONTO, June 9.—The Provincial Parliament convened yesterday. The Governor-General's message congratulating the Canadians on the spirit they have shown in rising to repel the invader, calls attention to the issue of President JOHNSON's proclamation, and strongly recommends the suspension of the habeas corpus. The bill suspending the writ of habeas corpus was introduced and passed in both Houses. It was during the day signed by the Governor-General. During the day the suspension of the habeas corpus caused a great flutter here; many persons have left and are leaving the city in consequence. No arrests have yet taken place, but some are expected soon. We have tidings of arrests from various parts of the Province.

Fire in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—A destructive fire occurred this morning on Twenty-fifth and Callowhill streets, near the Southkill. Davis' woolen mills and JAMES MONARCH & Co.'s cotton and woolen dyeing establishment were consumed—loss $200,000. The Keystone Mills were saved.

Congressional News.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Senator POLAND, to whom was referred the Bankrupt Bill which recently passed the House, will probably make a favorable report to the Judiciary Committee next week; but there is very little prospect of the passage of the bill at this session, as it will lead to more discussion than there is time for the Senate to indulge in.

The Cattle Disease at New York and Brooklyn.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 10.—The Hon. J. STAUNTON GOULD, President, and Colonel P. B. JOHNSON, Secretary of the New York State Agricultural Society, have prepared an important circular, saying: "We do hereby make known the existence of the Rinderpest, or pleuropneumonia, among the cows in the stables of New York and Brooklyn."

Fire at Augusta.

AUGUSTA, June 10.—R. L. WATKINS' drug store, JOHN N. MOTT'S crockery and PUTNAM & MALONE'S book store, were destroyed by fire this morning. Insurance unknown.

News from Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS, June 10.—Late information from Vera Cruz states that the Liberals had advanced from Oajaca on Cordova, and captured sixty-five Confederate colonists.

Sailing of Steamships from New York.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Six steamers sailed to-day for Europe. The City of London and Teutonia took upwards of two millions in gold.

New York Market.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Cotton quiet and unchanged. Gold 99½.

LATEST.

NEW YORK, June 9.—4:45 P. M.—Cotton steady; sales 2900 bales at 38 to 40 cents. Pork firm at $30 65. Sugar dull. Coffee quiet. Molasses dull. Gold closed 99.

New Orleans Market.

NEW ORLEANS, June 10.—Cotton firm. Sales yesterday 1400 bales, at 86 to 86½.

GOLD 97½. Bank Sterling 60.

Late Markets.

CINCINNATI, June 8.—Flour is in good local demand for trade. Rides $10 50 to $11 50. Good country extra is bringing $11. Wheat unchanged; No. 1 new red, $2 40 to 2 45. Corn unchanged; mixed 60c. Oats dull at 55c on the spot, but not saleable for future delivery at over 60c. Rye advanced to 90 to 95c for No. 1. Nothing doing in barley. Whiskey firm at 25c in bond. Mess pork firm at $31 to $31 25. At the close it could not be bought at the inside rate. Lard easier. Owing to the decline in gold it was offered at 22c. At the close there was an active demand for bulk meats to all orders from the East. A considerable amount was bought for Pittsburgh and Baltimore. Prices are higher, closing at 18 to 16 to 17½ for shoulders, sides and clear sides. Bacon firmer; shoulders 14½ to 14½; sides 17½ to 17½; and clear sides 19 to 19½. Butter and eggs unchanged. Gold dull at 142½ to 143.

OMAHA, June 7.—Whiskey firm at $2 25, duty paid; $2 25 in bond. There is an active demand for Bulk Meats.

LOUISVILLE, June 6.—Sales of 201 bushels of tobacco at full rates for all grades. Flour, superfine, $3 25. Mixed corn, in bulk, 68c; prime white, including meal, 85c. Oats, in bulk, 68c. Mess pork $31 50. Bacon shoulders 14½; clear sides 19½. Raw Whiskey 22c.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Flour quiet at $5 25 to $11 for spring extras. Wheat dull at $1 66 to $1 66½ for No. 1 and $1 69 to $1 69½ for No. 2. Corn dull at 59½ to $1 40 for No. 1 and 40c for No. 2. Oats advanced to $1 40, closing firm at 82 to 83c for No. 1 and 29½ to $1 40 for No. 2. Provisions firm. High wines firm at $3 25 for bonded. Freight opened firm, and closed weak at 14c on corn to Buffalo. Receipts—7500 bushels; 28,000 bushels wheat; 265,000 bushels corn; 65,000 bushels oats. Shipments—11,500 bushels flour; 38,000 bushels wheat; 260,000 bushels corn; 62,000 bushels oats.

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—Flour buoyant at 8½ to 9½ for single extra; 10 to 13½ for double extra. Wheat firm; high grades better, at 1 80 to 1 85 for Nos 1 and 2 spring; 1 92½ to 1 94 for extra club; 2 30 to 2 32 for prime; 2 40 to 2 42 for choice. Corn higher, at 67 to 70c. Oats lower, at 41 to 44½c. Bacon active and unchanged. Pork and lard steady. Whiskey easier, at $2 24.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—All departments of trade are dull. Petroleum quiet. Flour quiet. Wheat—good red wanted at 2 75 to $2 80. Corn dull; yellow at 91 to 93c. Whiskey dull at 2 25 to 2 26. Mess pork 31 to $31 50. Lard steady.

Coffee—2700 bags of coffee were offered for sale this forenoon, of which 625 bags of Rio were taken at 22½ to 25½c, and 237 bags of Lagayra at 26½ to 27c.

The President's Speech.

On the opening of the National Union Fair at Washington, June 6, (for the benefit of the soldiers and sailors), the President remarked that he came here to-night merely to say a word in the cause of humanity, and to unite in the expression of the gratitude of the nation for the nation's defenders. [Applause.] He did not come prepared to make a speech, but simply to give his countenance and encouragement in aid of the enterprise which the ladies had so nobly undertaken. He appeared here with no set phrase of speech and nicely-rounded periods to play upon the ear and to please the eye for a moment. If there was a cause which more than another should engage their sympathies, it was that of orphans, especially of those who lost their all and perilled their lives to save the Government. What nobler and better work could you be engaged in? He was proud that this great move should have its origin here at the seat of the National Government. Woman, God bless her, has been instrumental in the performance of great and noble acts in all periods of history, and it is not less becoming to them now than in the time gone by. But it was not his intention to invite his hearers to go back and review the new-made graves of the nefarious rebellion; nor to excite angry feelings in connection with the contest; not to revive the scenes of the battle-field, where brother was arrayed against brother. No, no; God forbid, and relieve us from the repetition of such calamities. We now rejoice that the land is no longer to be drenched by fratricidal blood. He would not reopen the wounds and make them bleed afresh. That was the work of war and contest and struggle, growing out of mistaken apprehensions.

Yours, he said, is the work of peace, to pour the balm, that the healing may take place; and what is more proper to that end than to take up the destitute orphans and educate and guide them, thus laying a solid moral basis which may control them throughout their future lives? You will find in these baskets precious gems, though now dimmed by poverty. Talents and genius are not confined to particular localities and places. Let them be provided for and educated, and you cannot fail to accomplish the great and you have undertaken.

You all remember the story of Cornelia, the mother of the Gracchi, the two greatest Romans who ever lived, and who lost their lives in vindicating the great cause of the people. A number of distinguished ladies in whose company she was, expatiated on their fine dresses and accomplishments, and the jewelry they wore, and other articles with which they were decorated and adorned. Cornelia attentively listened to each in turn, and then, looking out at the door, saw her two boys running homeward from school. Her cheeks flushed with maternal pride, and clasping them, one on each side, she exclaimed: "These are my jewels!" "You, ladies, can gather around you the orphans, the little boys and girls, and say, these are our jewels. This is your work, and no doubt it will be well accomplished. Let woman be engaged in this noble work; God bless her! Yes, woman can accomplish it if she will.

"None, none on earth's above her, As pure as thought as angels are, To see her is to love her."

[Applause.] Go on, your efforts will be crowned with success.

One view is of war, the other of peace—yes, peace. The other day, near this city—and not only once, but several times—he walked among the graves of the dead; and when he passed along and looked at the head-boards, he saw the names of soldiers, he saw New York, Indiana, and other States, the regiments of the Federal army. These they sleep in peace, the green sward growing upon their graves. They were Federal soldiers. He looked next on the other side, and what did he see? A. B., rebel soldier, belonging to such a regiment. The strife had ended—the contest closed. That was peace. When they were in the field engaged in strife it was war. Now they sleep in alternative graves while it is peace. [Applause.] And yet peace do its work.

He trusted our country and Government would be blessed with peace, and that confidence and respect for one another everywhere would be restored. [Applause.] And that those warring and disturbing elements which separated and divided us in the sanguinary conflict, through a high we passed many away. He trusted, too, that the asylum which it was proposed to establish might be extensive enough to bless all orphans. We should not inquire what made them orphans. Charity does not thus behave. They are human beings, and deserve your protection, kindness and instruction.

The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in an association of this kind he was not sure that he would be an intruder. This was a case in which he had a large amount of stock and interest. [Laughter.] He knew how to appreciate and admire the efforts and motives of the friends of organizations of this kind, and so far as in him lay, physically, mentally, pecuniarily, and intellectually, he would give his great work his aid. [Applause.]

He said his purpose to make any allusion to politics or the condition of the country; but as this asylum had been convened at the seat of the General Government, at the metropolis of the nation; he trusted it would take the character of a national orphan asylum. If it is a misfortune to be an orphan, it ought to be our pride, as it is our duty, to care for him. We wished a great, by the consent of the American people, so that in this church there could be a new for every orphan and a new for every loyal man from every State. Let our religion be national and this orphan asylum be national.

Let them be the controlling and supreme ideas which run through all our national institutions. The President thanked the ladies and gentlemen for the compliment of inviting him to be present. He should not like to have come as an intruder; but in